WORLD SYMPOSIUM ON CHORAL MUSIC WILL BE HOSTED IN ISTANBUL!

The next edition of the World Symposium on Choral Music will be hosted in Istanbul 25-30 April 2023. After the unfortunate cancellation of the 2020 edition, for the last 6 years the choral community has not had the opportunity to meet under the umbrella of the symposium. It is extremely exciting for us, Türkiye's Choral Culture Association, to be able to host this fantastic gathering in the historical and multicultural city of Istanbul, which connects the two continents Europe and Asia.

Since Türkiye has stepped in as a potential host of the WSCM 2023, a lot of time and energy has been invested into this project by IFCM and our national choral organisation Choral Culture Association. The Administrative and Artistic Committees are working on the details of the project, while our national board and local music commission are making sure everything is running smoothly with the preparations. The patron of the event will be the Turkish Ministry of Culture & Tourism and the central hub of the symposium will be Istanbul Atatürk Cultural Center, a symbolic venue of the city that has been renewed in the last years and opened again with a brand-new Opera Hall of 2040 seats and a Theatre Hall with 800 seats. The cultural complex also owns exhibition halls, multipurpose rooms, libraries, and much more. We are lucky to invite the choral community to the heart of Istanbul: Taksim Square. The location, which is famous with its Istiklal Street, is full of historical churches, museums, culture centers, local shops, and restaurants.

Come to Istanbul to discover new styles of singing and experience excellent quality of choral music under the theme of Changing Horizons. We are all looking forward to meeting all IFCM members in one of the most beautiful cities of the world.

LEAVE YOUR MARK: HOST THE WORLD SYMPOSIUM ON CHORAL MUSIC IN 2026

IFCM announces a proposal call to host the World Symposium on Choral Music in 2026. This triennial symposium is the prime global event in the international choral calendar. It draws together the world's leading musicians, choirs, vocal ensembles, conductors, composers, clinicians, and arts administrators for a superlative experience of concerts, workshops, seminars, presentations, and networking opportunities.

IFCM has held 11 symposia in 14 world-class cities over the past 35 years. The first WSCM was held in Vienna in 1987, followed by Stockholm/Helsinki/Tallinn in 1990; Vancouver, 1993; Sydney, 1996; Rotterdam, 1999; Minneapolis, 2002; Kyoto, 2005; Copenhagen, 2008; Puerto Madryn, 2011; Seoul, 2014; Barcelona, 2017; (Auckland, 2020, canceled). IFCM policy states that locations will generally alternate between the six continents. The next WSCM (2023) will be held in Istanbul, Turkey, from 25-30 April 2023.

Hosting a World Symposium brings high profile and prestige to the host city/country. The benefits accrue not only to the city and presenting partners, but to the musical growth and boosted economy of the region. If you and your organization/institution are interested in hosting the 2026 symposium, please examine the guidelines HERE, which provide essential information about hosting a WSCM, a list of requirements that will need to be considered, and details on the conference setup and the responsibilities of the host organization.

The proposal must come from a national organization, institution, or consortium. A major partnership with other entities, such as city/regional government and convention tourist bureau, is highly recommended.
