

The International Day of Choral Singing – Report 2005 - 2007

María Guinand, María Catalina Prieto

The Project

The initiative that Alberto Grau launched in 1991 through IFCM has become a referential point for the International Choral Movement.

Each year more countries join in concerts and festivals in their countries and regions and sing together on the second Sunday of December to celebrate the International Day of Choral Singing.

Since the beginning, the idea has been to have a 'motto' theme to relate this singing day to the human problems of today. In a time of confrontations, wars, ecological problems, social injustice, we can reflect through our voices the hope in humanity and turn this celebration in a World Celebration. In the last three years the themes were 'Reconciliation through Music' (2005), 'A Song for Peace' (2006), 'Tolerance through Choral Singing' (2007).

The events

We encourage the choirs, conductors and choral organizations to be creative in the celebration. They can organize any kind of choral event as long as it commemorates both the idea and the motto. Amongst the "traditional" events we have had entire festivals dedicated to the celebration, open-air singing, works composed for the celebration using the words of the proclamation and choir concerts. We have also had some original examples that had place during the past 3 years such as:

- Massive Children Singing in Venezuela
Thousands of children gather for massive concerts during the whole weekend. This has had place since the beginning of the celebration and is one of the most traditional events of the International Day of Choral Singing.
- Students' "Choir Manifestation" in Argentina
Around 1000 students aged 8 - 18 gathered in an open singing manifestation for peace. It took place the Friday before the official celebration in order to impact the people in a working day. An original way to break the indifference through choir singing.
- Choral Broadcasting weekend in Bulgaria
During the weekend of the celebration there were two days dedicated exclusively to choral music in one of the local radio stations.
- Ecumenical celebration in Colombia
A religious celebration gathering 4 of the religions existing in the country with a choir representing each one of them.

Each year the Proclamation 'Sing Choirs of the World' is read to accompany the concerts. The proclamation has been translated, mainly by conductors or choir members, into English, Italian, German, French, Rumanian, Serbian, Catalan, Swedish, Norwegian, Mandarin, Slovenian, Croatian, Bulgarian and Hungarian.

Communication

The communication has been done basically via e-mail, using several databases and some online choral journals such as ChoralNet and Noticiero Coral. Also, it has been publicized in the ICB and in the Web page of IFCM.

Participating Countries

The list of countries, choirs and organizations can be found in the attached tables; nevertheless, there is a certain amount of choirs that take part of the event without reporting to the organizers. We have been aware of that by searching in the Internet and finding out that some choirs that we didn't have in our database organized a concert or a festival.

In general the continent where it is more celebrated is In Latinamerica, nonetheless every year there are more and more choirs and countries taking part of this celebration.

Organization

During 15 years, until 2006 the International Day of Choral Singing was organized by the Fundación Schola Cantorum de Venezuela. From year 2007 on, the International Center for Choral Music in Namur has been appointed to continue promoting and strengthening this project.

Recommendations

For the future in terms of organization it is recommended to have a format to be send to all the choirs that report the participation, so that we won't have a lack of information in terms of number of audience, number of participants, type and duration of the event. Taking into account the new youth network it would be recommended to take advantage of it in order to spread the word of the celebration and its spirit.

An idea to make the young generation involved in the future could be to make a young composers' contest for the next years' celebration that includes the chosen motto.
